LIKE SANDPAPER

“Go set this on the kitchen table.”

Ruby grabbed plate and “thankful” tag her mom had put together and set it carefully on the kitchen table. She paused just a second to feel the smoothness of the wood. A faint smile crept across her face as she remembered that table’s history.

When they’d first gotten the table, they all got splinters from it. “Ouch!” was the most common word spoken at the dinner table that night.

That’s when Ruby’s dad had hauled the table to the garage and begun sanding on it. Ruby had just been a little girl, but her father had let her watch as he rubbed rough paper against the wood’s grains. “You’re hurting the table!” Ruby had protested, but her father had just smiled. He knew what she didn’t—that this sandpaper was exactly what that table really needed.

He’d been right. The table after sanding and finishing no longer produced splinters. It served its purpose and had been blessing them all since.

Ruby snapped back to the present, thinking about the

SHORT STORY: TWO PERSPECTIVES

Posted on June 27, 2024 by [kate \[loop\] hannon](#)

BaBa and BeBe both had traveled through some tough terrain recently. Their shepherd had led them through a narrow mountain pass, into (and out of) a dark cave, and now they were in a field where wild beasts had roared in the distance.

“It’s been a horrible trip,” BaBa moaned. “Dangers and hardships everywhere. Did you see how I toppled on my back coming down that mountain pass? I’d never traveled such a steep slope.”

“But the shepherd picked you right up,” countered BeBe. “He led us safely every step. We didn’t know where we were going, but he did. And I’m sure he still does.”

“But did you hear that noise last night?” BaBa asked. “I thought for sure a wild animal would tear us apart.”

“I heard it,” replied BeBe, “and I was afraid at first. But then I looked over at the shepherd, and saw he had his weapon at the ready. He’s not going to let anything hurt us, BaBa. I, for one, am going to graze in peace.”

With that, BeBe started munching on a delicious clump of grass. But BaBa was not finished yet.

“Where do you think we’ll go next? What if it’s near a cliff? I’m soooooo scarred I’ll fall over a cliff.”

BeBe felt a momentary panic at the thought of a cliff, but then she remembered her shepherd. “If our shepherd can lead us through the dangers he has, I think we can trust him to keep us safe near a cliff,” she replied, returning to her munching. This pasture had such delicious grass!

BaBa, on the other hand, kept baaing about the distant animal noises she heard and how hard of a path she’d trod. She kept thinking about the hardships instead of the shepherd.

“The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He makes me lie down in green pastures.”

Psalm 23:1-2a

Sharing the Joy!

“O Zion, messenger of good news, shout from the mountaintops! Shout it louder, O Jerusalem. Shout, and do not be afraid. Tell the towns of Judah, “Your God is coming!”

(Isaiah 40:9 NLT)

We are excited about our partnership with you and the unique ways we have celebrated this festive season in our community! Our Small Business Saturday was a great success, featuring an artisan fair with 16 talented artists showcasing their work. On December 7, we held our sixth annual community Christmas tree lighting event on our campus. Then, on December 13, our gym was filled with joy as we hosted a Christmas concert featuring several local singing groups and pastors who shared the Christmas story.

On December 22, our youth ministry team is organizing an all-day camp for young students. Campers will enjoy breakfast, watch a Christmas movie, hear the Christmas story, bake cookies, create crafts, and participate in fun games.

We hope these events effectively convey the message of the most incredible love story ever told. Thank you for supporting us in spreading the love of our Creator, Sustainer, and Redeemer.

Spreading the Hope of Christ – One Life at a Time
Christmas 2025

Dear Friends and Ministry Partners,

As we celebrate the birth of our Savior this Christmas, our hearts are filled with gratitude—for Christ's unending love and for you, our faithful supporters, who make the work of Grace Covenant Ministries possible.

This holy season reminds us of God's greatest gift: Jesus Christ, Emmanuel—God with us. In a world that often feels uncertain and weary, the message of hope, peace, and redemption shines brighter than ever. Because of your prayers, generosity, and commitment to the Gospel, we are able to carry that message into communities that desperately need to hear it.

Throughout 2025, we have witnessed the Lord's faithfulness in incredible ways. He has truly given us "strength for today and bright hope for tomorrow." Whether through Work Groups, the many camps we offered to the community, or simply walking alongside someone in need, your support has helped us be the hands and feet of Jesus and given us opportunity to share the hope we have in Him!

As we look ahead to a new year of ministry, we are reminded that we do not walk alone. God continues to open doors, and with your continued partnership, we are excited to see what He will do in the year to come.

May your heart be filled with the wonder of His love this Christmas. We pray that you and your loved ones experience the peace, joy, and presence of Christ in every moment of this season and beyond.

From all of us at Grace Covenant Ministries—thank you, God bless you, and have a very Merry Christmas and a blessed New Year!

"The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light; Those who dwelt in the land of deep darkness, on them light has shone." Is. 9:2

Praise the Lord for the light of Jesus Christ that sets the captives free! It is a blessing for me to share the light of Christ to the men in prison and to encourage them in the faith walk. When I started prison ministry 24 years ago, my desire was to bring hope to the men behind the prison walls. My desire was to let them know God has a new life for them when they repent of their sins and put their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ! The true light of Jesus Christ has and is shining on men behind bars!

Jameson Annex was lockdown for nearly two weeks. It gave me the opportunity to visit the county jail and the Hill. It was good to get back into Jameson on Wednesday morning and meet with some of men again! Two of the Christian men who are in the same cell were having difficulty getting along before the lockdown. James told me that he would have to move out or his celli would have to move out. When I came back on Wednesday morning James told me the lockdown was good for him and his celli. He said, "The lockdown forced us to be honest with one another. We could not keep going with the bad feelings between us. We shared with each other what was irritating about the other. We apologized to each other, prayed together, and now we are having Bible study together in the early morning!" Praise God for the light that broke through the darkness!

I have known Joe for more than 15 years. Some years ago, he came to my mental health weekly Bible studies. Joe just found out his brother had died, and he wanted to visit with me. Joe poured out his heart to me. His story is a sad story of a broken man.

Joe was very emotional telling his life's story. He told me, "My father was not around much when I was growing up.

He had an addiction problem. When I was five years old my mother told me where I got some of my scars. It was from my father who did this before I could remember what happened. I grew up with terrible fits of anger. When I was eight years old a kid a few grades ahead of me started to make fun of me. I ran full force into him and he hit his head on the cement. I couldn't stop beating on him and he died. I was put in a home for kids like me where I got into many fights. Now in my forties, I look back over my life and see how I have hurt a lot of people. I don't know how God could love a person like me." In the past several years Joe has been studying various religions. As I went over the gospel with Joe, he said he believed God's Word. As we prayed together Joe invited Christ to forgive him and trusted Jesus to be his Lord and Savior. Joe said, "I am surprised that I made this commitment. Now I have to keep my commitment to God." He wants to meet weekly to grow in understanding the Bible. Joe is serious about the decision he made to follow Jesus daily! As the Lord's light shines on him, Joe now has the hope only God can give!

Henry is a very timid man. He told me, "I am tired of my life of addiction. My personality changes for the worse when I am high on drugs. I have hurt a lot of people because of my drug addiction! I want to take Jesus seriously this time and have Him change my life." We prayed for his salvation and the next week he was baptized! A few days after his baptism Henry told me, "Men in my cell block are telling me that they know where I can get more drugs when I get out of prison. I told them I have no interest in doing drugs, my life has changed! The bad dreams I have been having are now gone since I have been baptized!" Praise God!

I am always thankful for your prayers and financial support! I hope you have a great Christmas and blessed New Year!

In Christ,

Harlan

THANKING GOD FOR...

- α. Another new school year is kicking off smoothly. Risa ended up with a new teacher and a new gymnastics class. Matthew has the same teacher and the same fun soccer team. Theodore is getting used to all the new things at his international American school and was even nominated to be a part of a special incubator group of students who receive funds for creative projects.
- β. The opportunity to join our music ministry friends at a Christian family conference. As seasons change, our relationship deepens.
- γ. The Kypseli church event celebrating our 10th anniversary in October. The history shared through stories and pictures was nostalgic. We were the only young family with babies at the beginning. Here's to more years of loving service in the community.

TRUSTING GOD WITH...

- α. "The new building move for our church family. While the need to transition has never felt more urgent, the obstacles keep arising." - We wrote these words one year ago, and unfortunately, the situation remains the same. Please pray for patience and wisdom as progress, however slowly, continues.
- β. Meggan's pastoral care ministry. At times it has felt hard to separate greater intentionality in friendships from the work of routine care, but this year really cemented the need for this commitment. Every preacher that we know well in Greece is a man, except for one, and the majority have at least two jobs already, so paying attention to the women who could really use another woman's care and listening ear feels very purposeful and fulfilling.

I love reflecting on the Christian story during Advent and Christmas. Not that it is a competition, but I tend to stand in greater awe before the significance of "God with us" than I do other theological concepts. Philippians 2:6-7 says Jesus didn't think of divinity as a thing to be grasped, but instead became a human to serve.

Jesus lived out relatable human experiences. He learned his father's craft. He walked alongside young people sharing life wisdom. He wept.

Then he did other things that fewer humans dare to do. He ruined his reputation hanging out with the wrong people. He went and touched those with physical ailments that kept them from being "clean" to join Jewish worship practices. He sympathized with tax collectors caught up in governmental systems of exploitation and helped reconcile relationships amongst his hodge podge group of friends and followers. He taught women hungry to learn and encouraged that desire when societal norms dictated otherwise.

Jesus' growing popularity resulted in religious and government leaders fearing the threat to their power, so Jesus was eliminated in a horrible way. This was Jesus, born into dependency on others as an infant; building intimate relationships; and finally dying a shameful human death.

The fancy theological term for these "God with us" musings is called incarnation, or literally, enfleshment. The heart of my ministry work in this season is incarnational ministry. I walk alongside others through their joys, but especially sorrows. Recently there has been no shortage of them. For example, a college friend with a relatively recent bipolar diagnosis like me, tragically ended her life. This was a gut punch on so many levels that I'm still processing with her friends, some old, some new to me. Not only is it important yet challenging walking with one another through the grief, I also find myself in a unique position to have actually lived the bipolar experience, in the flesh, and therefore I am often asked to explain the almost unexplainable realities of having your mind assaulted in such devastating and violating ways.

Then there's cancer. Screw cancer. An extended family member, a beloved community member, and a 19-year old from our Athens church have died from cancer this year after relatively short times of knowing how severely ill they were. Beyond the loss of these precious lives, sometimes the recovery and fall out from the season of treatment is also terrible. A college friend, for instance, was recently met with a lot of unexpected financial stress two years after her diagnosis simply because she switched jobs and her insurance plan had to adjust. Money and health care. What a mess.

Family and friends have gone through significant surgeries lately and some of their recoveries are not going nearly as smoothly as hoped. Others are debating what sort of treatment is necessary or beneficial for chronic pain.

Unfortunately, there have also been more friends than ever before walking through divorce mediation and settlements and custody agreements. I don't think divorce is always avoidable. It wasn't the first, second, or even third choice of my friends. I long to communicate grace and practical support where necessary as well, because sometimes greater flourishing can only come again with new living arrangements.

Jesus wept. Jesus grieved with those who grieved. Jesus longed for healing in more ways than one and showed the way to live this life from an overflow of God's love moving in you and through you to others. One of my favorite Greek words is xehilizee (xe-he-lee-zee). Overflow. May you be filled up and overflowing with God's love so you too can weep with those who weep, and rejoice with those who rejoice. Such as my friends with various bittersweet and wonderful news updates:

There were celebrations of well deserved retirement transitions. A friend enthusiastically welcomed a foster son into their already busy family dynamic. Also, a precious newborn shares a birthday with his late grandpa who left us far too young. There are new and old friends moving to Athens, giving opportunities to connect and help with adjustments. I am here for it—the joys and challenges of various transitions through life. Unfortunately many pastors, including ours, are not paid full time by our church, so I know that helping with pastoral care visiting is important. Not only that, many American young moms arrive in Athens through missions or US embassy work, but have few who can understand what they're going through. Since I've been here 17 years, I have a good toolkit of knowledge and experience to offer alongside the all important listening ear.

I enjoy my job very much. Thank you for your prayers and support so that I can do it! May you all have a very Merry Christmas celebrating Emmanuel - God with us.

CHANGE
Young Hearts

Your support in 2025 helped 19,126 young people in Venezuela to study God's Word.

Share the Gospel with Young People

For 87 years, Bible League International has believed that lasting change begins with a Bible—and someone who cares enough to share it.

One of our key ministry programs is helping young people to know their Savior, Jesus Christ. We provide hands-on Bible study materials that get kids and teens excited about Jesus. And we train leaders who guide them.

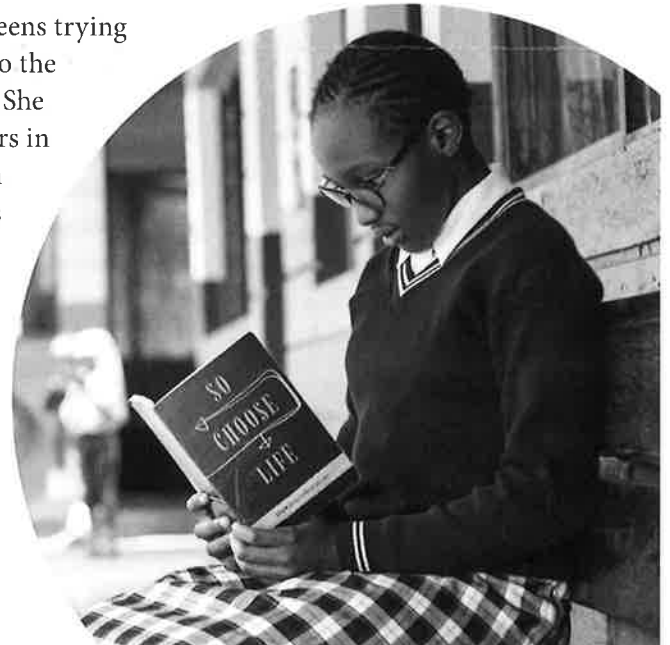

About 40% of those who studied God's Word through Bible League's ministry are children and youth. In 2025, nearly 690,000 children around the globe heard how much their heavenly Father loves them. Our new materials for children—the Discovery Series—have been instrumental in helping to engage more children in God's Word.

God's Word Transforms Lives and Communities

Stacey, 12, lives in a slum area in Nairobi, Kenya. Like so many tweens trying to navigate the world and figure out their place in it, Stacey fell into the wrong crowd. She began to disobey her parents and cause trouble. She recalls, "I became a great burden to my parents and even to teachers in schools." Her parents were not believers, and she had never known about Jesus—until her school began using Bible League's materials in her classroom.

Through studying God's Word, Stacey understood she needed to change the way she was living and make better decisions. She beams, "While doing the booklet, I realized I needed to change by making the right decision of receiving Jesus."

Since then, Stacey has seen profound change in her life. She beams, "What I loved before, and thought was the best, I came to realize it's only being with Jesus that gives real, true life, joy, and peace."

She stopped hanging out with the wrong crowd, began going to church, and implemented prayer within her family. The young evangelist explains how they now pray as a family every morning before school and every night before bed. Stacey gushes, "This has brought great transformation in our home."

Stacey's story shows what's possible when you help a child know Jesus. Reaching kids with the love of Jesus creates a ripple effect throughout their families—and their communities. Thank you for your faithful support in helping to shape the next generation of Christ followers. You are a blessing!

Hello from Indiana!

I hope this letter finds you well and you're getting prepared to celebrate the holidays with family and friends from near and far.

Our family has had a great year, and we are looking forward to being together over the holidays. We love the freedom of having an "empty nest" but absolutely love when the house is full of our two boys, their girlfriends, and of course the grand dogs.

Cole is now 18 and a senior at Culver Military Academy. He had a great soccer season being named All-State Top Team Player for his team, as well as Academic All-State. He has now moved into wrestling season and is hoping to make a strong run for a state championship. Academically, he is doing well, and we are now in the waiting game to see what his offers are for college. He is hoping to get a full ride for flight school at either Purdue or Embry Riddle. I can't believe he will be graduating high school at the end of May!

Carson graduated with a business degree from Morehead State University in May. Upon graduation, he was promoted to the rank of 1st Lieutenant in the Kentucky National Guard. He didn't have much time to relax, as he reported to Fort Leonard Wood in Missouri on June 2nd for his specialized training in the Army Corps of Engineers. He completed his training and graduated on October 23rd and is now back in Kentucky applying for full-time work. We are so grateful that he is serving our country and has zero college debt.

As I mentioned earlier, Julie and I continue to enjoy our time together as empty nesters. I travel often for Mission India, and Julie can travel with me for many trips. It is so much fun being on the road with her by my side. Our favorite trip this year was to Sheldon, Iowa for a Christian music festival called RiseFest.

Over 20,000 people attend this event each summer and there are always so many powerful stories about how God is moving and taking back ground from the enemy. Mike Weaver (a huge fan of Mission India) from Big Daddy Weave was our guest this year at RiseFest. He performed a few songs for our Iowa financial partners and then performed on the main stage at Rise. It was AMAZING!

After performing on the main stage, we invited folks in attendance to our booth to hear more about Mission India and for a chance to meet Mike Weaver. One of the people that waited in that long line was a man named, Mike. He was a veteran with PTSD and a few years prior he was losing everything. As he introduced himself, he shared that Big Daddy Weave's song, Redeemed, saved his life. He went on to explain that with gun in hand ready to end his life a friend called. Mike shared what he was about to do with his friend and wanted to say "goodbye." His friend made him promise that he wouldn't do anything to himself until he arrived to his home to talk. It would take about 10 minutes, so his friend asked if he would turn on a local radio station until he arrived. Mike agreed and turned on the radio. In that moment, God was going to rescue this man from the grips of Satan and the song Redeemed started to play in its entirety. Mike listened to every word and by the time his friend arrived, he was ready to commit to following Jesus.

Since that day, Mike's marriage has been restored. His relationship with his children has been repaired. He has a great job. But the best news of all... He has an amazing relationship with his Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

You see, Genesis 50:20 is really God's heartbeat. Whatever Satan intends for evil; God will always use for good. I am so thankful that both Mikes were at RiseFest this summer. It was inspiring to me to see the impact we can have on those that we don't even know. We GET to do this with the help of the Holy Spirit!

I pray all of you will have a wonderful Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year.

Love you all,

John, Julie, Carson and Cole Meiser

Dear friends at First Reformed Church,

The Love INC ministry is made possible through the generosity of church partners—like you! Your partnership empowers the God’s local Church to invest in the lives of our neighbors who are struggling—ultimately strengthening the health and hope of our entire community. THANK YOU!

There is a sign hanging in my office that reads: “This story is bigger than me”. It reminds me of the multiplying effect we can have when we invest in the lives of others. The 2000 movie, Pay It Forward, is a good reminder of this as well. In the movie, 7th grade social studies teacher Mr. Simonet, gives his class an assignment: think of an idea to change the world—and put it into action. God had an idea to change the world. “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life”. But that’s not all. God created His Church with the purpose of reflecting the values of the kingdom of God and charged us with being Christ’s ambassadors (2 Corinthians 5:20).

Love INC’s model of mobilizing local churches to transforms lives and communities in the name of Christ has been at work in our community since 2003. We are a partnership of churches desiring to help resolve needs in the name of Christ.

2025 has been a year of growth for Love INC! Between the summer and fall session of classes, the Life Together ministry nearly doubled in size. This program is a powerful tool for transformation as the Church invests in the lives of others. It is where “experts” share their knowledge with those desiring better lives, where community members come learn about being better stewards in different areas of life (like their finances, day-to-day living, parenting, relationships, etc.), and where children are valued by caring volunteers. Currently, 48 adults and 25 children from the community participate in this program. An additional 20+ Christian volunteers serve each week.

Beyond that, 22 households are currently receiving support through requests for household items or transportation to medical appointments. As food insecurity continues to be a local concern, we are also distributing both Thanksgiving and Christmas meal kits to families in need this holiday season.

Earlier this year, our board approved a strategic plan that outlines our vision for expanding services to meet growing needs. One exciting step in this direction is the recent re-launch of classes for our Spanish-speaking community!

As the number of people and the depth of needs continue to rise, we desire to see a greater story unfold—one where we are financially equipped to serve at a higher capacity. This means welcoming more clients and caring for them well, meeting more needs, and mobilizing even more churches and Christians to share the love and hope found in Jesus Christ. We desire to see God’s kingdom multiplied through acts of care and the equipping others.

One of my favorite scenes from the movie, Pay It Forward, is when 7th grade student, Trevor, shares his idea for changing the world. His plan looked something like this:

Everything Love INC does is rooted in the desire to equip people with the knowledge, resources, and hope for a life in line with God's design—to see our neighbors living with the full value, capacity, and potential in which God created them. When that happens, there is a trickle effect, where one life transforms another, and we are all living closer to the fullness God intends.

Thank you for being active partners in this mission!

In His Service,
